Phonemic awareness worksheets kindergarten

This blog post is about teaching primary learners phonemic awareness using sorting worksheets. Phonemic Awareness is an important foundational skill that is essential in learning how to read. Phonemic Awareness is the ability to hear and change individual sounds in spoken words. Some examples include sound matching, sound isolation and sound segmenting. There are very easy games you can play to teach students phonemic awareness! Some examples are "thumbs up, thumbs down." In this game, you pick a sound like /m/ or /r/ and students put their thumbs up or down if the word starts with that letter. You can make a cube with certain letters on it. Students take turn tossing the cube and saying a word that has that sound! It is very easy to implement phonemic awareness activities in your small group instruction. Here are some additional activities that promote phonemic awareness: Reading and reciting nursery rhymes Singing songs that play with sounds (Like the Name Game) Sorting worksheets that has pictures with no print These FREE beginning sounds worksheets are designed to help your students develop their phonemic awareness skills. Students sort by the beginning sound and not the beginning sound. So they sort /a/ and not /a/ using the pictures. They practice rainbow tracing the targeted letter too! Each letter shows the correct formation to make the letter. To challenge students that are ready, students draw a picture of a person, thing, place or object that matches the beginning sound. No Prep Beginning Sounds Sort Worksheets This is a perfect back to school activity for several reasons. Students practice phonemic awareness, fine motor skills of cutting and coloring, writing their name, practice sorting, letter writing and skills that they need to begin reading text. When you can use it? These sorting worksheets can be used during literacy centers or guided reading. You can even laminate these worksheets for repeated practice! It's really up to you how you can use these FREE worksheets in your classroom! Why is It Important To Learn Beginning Sounds? Before we dive into the phonics worksheets, lets answer a basic question. Why do we teach beginning sounds? I think we can all agree that reading is one of the most important skills that are students need to develop. It is our job to get students started on the road to literacy. One of the most important skills young readers need to develop is phonological awareness. In a nutshell, this is the ability hear the different sounds in a word and associate those sounds with letters (phonics). Building the relationships between the sounds and the letters is critical. It sets the foundation for learning to read and write. It is so important, that a recent study concluded that a well developed phonological awareness in kindergarten is a strong predictor of later reading success. Isolating the different sounds in a word is an important part of that. Once they have that down, they can move on to identifying letter names and what sounds they make. We start with beginning sounds because they are the easiest for younger readers to hear. We want our students to get to the point where they can look at a new word and be able to sound it out. Helping them associate letters and sounds will help them do that. We know that students will be reading a lot in school. Making that a positive experience for young readers is a huge gift. How to Teach Beginning Sounds To Students? We need a multifaceted approach to teaching phonics for kids as with everything else. Some of your students will come to Kindergarten with a well-developed phonological awareness and others will be starting from scratch. Every child is unique, and they all have different ways of learning. So, we need to approach this in as many ways as possible. Like anything else practice is key. The more our students work on those beginning sounds, the easier it will become. We've put together a set of FREE beginning sound worksheets for you to use in the classroom or at home. They are perfect for students who need extra practice listening for those letter sounds. Common Core Standards If you follow the common core standards, this set of worksheets covers the following reading standards: CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RF.K.2.D Isolate and pronounce the initial, medial vowel, and final sounds (phonemes) in three-phoneme (consonant-vowel-consonant, or CVC) words. CCSS.ELA-LITERACY.RF.K.3.A Demonstrate basic knowledge of one-to-one letter-sound correspondences by producing the primary sound or many of the most frequent sounds for each consonant. What is in the Free Worksheets? There are 2 different sets of worksheets. Both require the students to identify the beginning sounds of simple words. The worksheets in the first set has nine pictures corresponding to 9 simple words. The words are written under the picture but are missing the first letter. Most of the words are CVC words, but we also have a few four-letter words in the mix. Students are invited to say the word out loud, identify the beginning sound, and then write in the missing letter. The second set of worksheets is based on the I spy game. Students are given the first letter and will Read the letter and identify corresponding letter sound in the directions. Look at the pictures and identify those that start with the correct beginning sound. Color, cut out, and glue those pictures into place. I've found that students love cut and paste activities. It never seems to get old for this age group. It also makes the worksheets a little more hands-on and interactive. Always a good thing! The beginning sounds worksheets don't require any preparation- just PRINT AND GO. They can be used in small groups, literacy centers, independent work, or homework. Feel free to use them as you wish in your classroom or at home.
